The Swiss Association of Perinatal Pharmacology (SAPP) is a nonprofit scientific interdisciplinary group composed of physicians and pharmacists, who promotes the knowledge and distribution on the impact of substances (drugs and medications) in the pregnant woman, nursing mother, unborn child, preterm neonate, term neonate, and breastfed baby.

The SAPP investigates the use and safety of off-label use in Obstetrics.

The SAPP gathers existing and promotes new knowledge in the area of Perinatal Pharmacology from research into the practice in the form of publications, continuing education and links to databases and other scientific groups.

The SAPP is a platform where topics and questions in the area of Perinatal Pharmacology are discussed between specialists in healthcare (university, industry, legal authorities and practice).

Become a SAPP member and increase the knowledge and the possibilities of Perinatal Pharmacology!

Please contact our homepage: www.sappinfo.ch

The SAPP is supported by volunteering, foundations and membership fees. Meetings are additionally supported by sponsors.